

COMPANY OVERVIEW

Chatoyer Water is an Australian owned design and engineering group, established since 1996. Since this time Chatoyer Water has been designing, manufacturing, installing and commissioning water and wastewater systems throughout Australia, Asia, South Pacific and Africa. Managed from our offices in Sydney, Brisbane and Perth and we take pride in our professional approach to water requirements with experience across different aspects of water and wastewater treatment.

We offer turn-key solutions starting from conceptual design to manufacturing, installation and commissioning of water and wastewater treatment systems for industrial, commercial, and regional community applications. As a specialist designer of packages and containerised systems which are ideal for remote locations or sites with space limitations, Chatoyer Water has achieved an enviable expertise in providing systems to some of Australia's largest mining, engineering, development and construction companies as well as local councils and regional communities.

Chatoyer Water's management team have extensive industry and commercial experience. Our experienced project managers work closely with our team of engineers to comprehensively coordinate and manage each client relationship, understanding your water treatment needs and ensuring each solution completely fulfils our client's unique requirements.
